The republic of Korea mentions RMNCH as a strategic objective of its development aid health policy, and gender is listed as a cross-cutting issue.<sup>(1)</sup> In 2015, the Republic of Korea launched the 'Better Life for Girls'<sup>(2)</sup> initiative, with a focus on improving girls' right to health and education and a budget of 200 million USD for 2016-2020. Although its 2016 ODA commitments for FP and RMNCH fell sharply, Korea's disbursements continued to increase in line with previous years. Korea tends to report less directly on FP funding.
